

The digital transformation is just the beginning ...

Dirk Helbing

ETH Zurich
`dirk.helbing@gess.ethz.ch`

The world is running into great trouble. The anthropocene challenges (including climate change, impending resource shortages, demographic change, conflict, financial and economic crises) call for entirely new solutions. As a result, we are now seeing the emergence of data-driven societies around the globe. What organizational framework should we choose? What would be the implications?